NIGHT FAIR IS HELD PROBABLE

Committee Appointed to Investigate to Report Today, But Lack of Data Causes Postponement.

TO HEAR FROM THE I. & C. YET

Fair Board Makes Out Premium List and Prepares For Baby Show and Fox Chase.

The committee appointed to investigate and report on the advisability of holding a night fair in connection with the annual Rush county fair was scheduled to report today, but the report had to be postponed for the lack of data.

The committee has been spending considerable time at the task and is now waiting on a proposition from Will M. Frazee, president of the I. & C. Light and Power company for furnishing current to light the grounds. The proposition of holding a night fair was taken up by the fair board some time ago and at that time it looked favorably upon the proposition. It all depends on the cost of lighting the grounds. If the grounds can be lighted on the receipts from a night fair, it is almost certain to be a go. The association does not believe it should light the grounds and then lose money on the adventure. Will M. Frazee of the I. & C. was out of the city today and could give the committee no answer.

At a meeting of the Rush County Fair board this week, the premium lists were made out in every department, with the exception of the speed department. The list is said to be an improvement over former years and several new features were added that will increase the interest. The premiums were not increased in value but were rearranged and made more attractive.

The directors have planned for a baby show to be held this year. This is included in the premium list. Other new features will be a fox chase and a mile race. The contract for the merry-go-round and Ferris wheel concessions have been awarded. An effort will be made this year to increase the attendance on Tuesday and the old custom of admitting veterans of the Civil and Spanish-American wars and all school children will be revived. This feature has not been played very heavily in recent years and the directors hope to have a record crowd on Tuesday.

The committee in charge of the speed ring is working on that part and will have an attractive program to offer when they complete the work.

SCHEDULE STARTS MONDAY

I. & C. Will Operate All Cars as Usual Again After Storm.

The Indianapolis & Cincinnati Traction company will resume its normal schedule Monday, after operating only local cars for almost a week. The deep snow held the line up for a day or so, but this was not the sole trouble. The snow also damaged the motors which made repairs necessary. Steam roads are back to normal again after the storm.

CHAPTER MEETING.

Rush Chapter, No. 24, R. A. M. will hold their regular stated meeting Monday night at which time the Mark Master degree will be conferred. A good attendance is desired.

MANY TOOK EXAMINATION

New Record Established in County
Superintendent's Office.

The second examination for teachers was held today. At the first one held a month ago a new record was established for the number taking the examination but today even that record was smashed. Seventy three took the examination and practically the third floor of the court house was filled with teachers and prospective teachers. County superintendent C. M. George had difficulty in placing all those desiring to take the examination because of the small examination room.

WILL STOP DOING AUDITOR'S WORK

County Recorder Announces Deeds
Must Be Transferred for Taxation by Auditor.

HE'S DONE IT HERETOFORE

Charles Brooks, county recorder, announced today that after March 1st, which is tomorrow, deeds will not be received in his office for record until they have been transferred for taxation at the county auditor's office, as required by the law.

Heretofore Recorder Brooks has been doing this work—transferring deeds for taxation—which is the duty of the county auditor under the law. The auditor also is allowed a fee for doing this work. Up until the present the recorder, in addition to doing the work, has been collecting the fee and paying it to the auditor.

The recorder last year offered to continue doing the auditor's work if the auditor would turn the mortgage exemption business over to his office, but A. R. Holden, the county auditor, would not accept the proposition. Mr. Brooks also served notice on Mr. Holden that he would discontinue the custom of former years.

MRS. JAMES FRAZEE IS DEAD AT MARION

Relatives Here Receive Death Message Shortly After Letter Telling of Sickness.

LIVED HERE 12 YEARS AGO

Within a few minutes after a letter had been received stating that Mrs. Alice Frazee, wife of James Frazee, had suddenly taken sick with pneumonia at her home in Marion, relatives here got a telephone message that she had died.

Mrs. Frazee was fifty-eight years old and lived here most of her life, with the exception of the last twelve years, during which time her home had been in Marion. She was a sister of Mrs. James Osborn, who died just four months ago yesterday.

Mrs. Frazee was born near College Corner, Ohio, but came here with her parents when young and spent most of her life here. She is survived by her husband, a daughter, two sons and three grandchildren. The body will arrive here over the Big Four at 3:28 o'clock Monday afternoon and be taken to East Hill for burial. It is probable short services will be held at the Chapel.

FLOWERCONTEST WILL BE LARGER

Social Service and Civic Improvement Association Announces
Plans For This Year.

WILL INCLUDE MORE CLASSES

In Addition to Flowers, Prizes Will be Given For Best Trees, Shrubs and Vines.

The Rushville Civic Improvement and Social Service association announced today that it would hold the flower contest for school children next August in connection with the chautauqua, as was done last year, except that this year the contest will be on a much larger scale.

The officers of the association expect to work all summer to make the contest a much more pretentious affair than was the first attempt. Last year the contest included the school children as a whole, but this year the city will be districted into four parts and prizes will be offered in each section.

Last year the prizes were only for flowers, but this year there will be prizes for the best fruit and shade trees, shrubs, vines and ornamental plants, in addition to flowers. There will be no prize this year on the best flower bed, but it is probable that one will be given for the best vegetable garden grown from seeds that will be distributed.

The seeds will cost a penny a package and there are no trees costing more than fifteen cents each. The seeds, shrubs, vines and trees are for sale at the same price to any one outside the children who may care to purchase them.

The order blanks are ready for the children and will be distributed the first of next week. Prizes will be offered on the following flowers: asters, calliopsis, marigolds, nasturtiums, phlox, snap dragon, verbenas and zinnias.

The city will be divided as follows: the southwest portion, the northwest portion and all those east of Jackson street, except the colored children, who will constitute the fourth class.

CHARGES LOBBY IS HARD AT WORK

Representative Manahan Says Railroads and Steamer Companies
Had Men on Job Today.

AGAINST IMMIGRATION BILL

(By United Press.)

Washington, Feb. 28.—Powerful railroad and Atlantic steamship companies are in Washington today lobbying against a clause in the immigration bill abolishing the rebate on emigrants who travel from the steamship companies to the railroads, according to Representative Manahan of Minnesota.

He asserted the railroads are allowed a rebate from $1 to $4 a person by the steamship companies upon emigrants returning to their home abroad.

The county board of education at the regular meeting to be held Monday will decide on the dates for holding the various township eighth grade examinations.

MANY TECHNICAL SUBJECTS

Many People Get Acquainted With Library Friday Night While Waiting on Lecturer.

* PUBLIC LIBRARY ANSWERS *
* FOR OTHER NINETY-NINE. *

Out of every hundred children in the United States entering schools, thirty-four finish the eighth grade.

Fourteen of the thirty-four enter high school.

Six of the fourteen are graduated from high school.

Two of the six enter some college.

One of the two graduates.

How about the other ninety-nine?

The public library is the answer.

This seems to be the mission of the public library wherever it is found and the library board here is attempting to make the Rushville library fill its mission.

With that aim in view the library board has been buying only staple fiction, and with the remaining funds has been purchasing technical works of interest to all forms and classes of businesses, professions and occupations.

But the library board feels that it can not make the library fulfill its mission in the way that it should unless it has suggestions on what to buy. Several men in business, the professions and in a few avocations have been opportuned to present a list of books of interest to them from which the board may make selections.

Many people got a speaking acquaintance with the library last night when they went to the court house assembly room to hear the Rev. Frank Wicks of Indianapolis, who missed train connections and did not arrive.

Approximately fifty people came out for the lecture, and while they waited—until almost nine o'clock—they "nosed" around the library and made themselves familiar with what the shelves hold.

Some time ago the Rev. Mr. Wicks was told to leave Indianapolis at five o'clock on the dispatch. When he learned he could not get a car which would reach here before 8:42 o'clock, he wired a member of the board he would not come. The telegram was not delivered until after seven o'clock when it had been received at 5:30. At that time the person to whom it had been sent had left home. This caused inconvenience to the people who wasted over an hour waiting.

This was to have been the third in the series of lectures under the auspices of the library board. The chief purpose of the series was to arouse some interest in the library and the board believes that it has accomplished its purposes in a measure.

Greater things, it is believed, are in store for the Rushville library. One of the plans for the future is to have the library open at least half the nights, or possibly more, during the week. It is now open only on Saturday nights.

One of the barriers to the taking

NEWS OF UNCLE'S DEATH

J. P. Stech Hears Today of Demise of George B. Stech at Warren.

J. P. Stech, city treasurer, today received word of the death of his uncle, George B. Stech, who expired at his home in Warren, Huntington county, Indiana, yesterday. He was almost ninety years old and was the oldest of a family of eleven children, five of whom, all brothers, have preceded him to the grave. He is survived by three sisters, three brothers and three sons. He was a wealthy, pioneer farmer of Huntington county and lived in the old homestead until four years ago, when he moved to Warren.

RESERVOIR SHOWS GAIN IN TWO DAYS

Evil of Allowing City Water Run at Night to Prevent Freezing of Pipes Still Exists, However.

A. T. MAHIN FIGURES WASTE

Water conditions at the city plant have improved considerably but there is still much wasted. It is undoubtedly due to the fact that hydrants and faucets are left running to prevent freezing. The supply in the reservoir has been watched closely and has shown a gain in the last two days.

That much water can be wasted by the continual running of the water through an open hydrant is shown by figures recognized as authentic by reliable engineers. A 1-64 inch leak wastes two gallons an hour and costs one cent a day. A 1-32 inch leak wastes 8 gallons an hour and costs five cents a day. A 1-2 inch leak wastes 514 gallons an hour and costs $21.84 a day. In this the rate is put at twenty-five cents a thousand gallons.

TRABUE ELECTED COUNTY CHAIRMAN

Was Renamed by Democratic Committeemen at Meeting This Afternoon.

CASSADY VICE-CHAIRMAN

Samuel L. Trabue was selected as Democratic county chairman by the precinct committeemen this afternoon in a meeting held in the county commissioners room in the court house. The election of Mr. Trabue was unanimous. He succeeds himself as county chairman. Mr. Trabue was elected county chairman two years ago and while there was some talk of opposition to him this time, it did not develop at the meeting. James Cassady was named vice-chairman. He held this position in the old organization. The treasurer and secretary are to be selected by the county chairman.

There was some talk of Cassady opposing Trabue for the chairmanship but it was all talk as Trabue's name was the only one presented to the convention. A large crowd attended the meeting.

The county commissioners were in session a short time today as free turnpike directors. The usual claims were allowed.

H. E. BARRETT IS THE APPRAISER

Former City Attorney Named Today
by Judge Megee Under Inheritance Tax Law.

SALARY IS $5 FOR EACH DAY

Foreclosure Suit and Claim Against Estate Dismissed — Remonstrance is Overruled.

Howard E. Barrett, former city attorney, was appointed appraiser in all matters pertaining to the inheritance tax this morning by Judge Megee. This is in accordance with the law passed by the last legislature giving the court the right to appoint the inheritance tax appraisers. The position pays five dollars a day for every day actually and necessarily employed in making appraisals. The law gives the court the right to appoint an appraiser for each estate if he desires.

The case of William Dagler against Helen H. Pierson, administratrix of the estate of William Pierson, deceased, was dismissed this morning and the costs paid by the plaintiff. It was a claim demanding $95.

The suit of Byron T. Sampson against Clinton W. Phillips, Laura Phillips, Edward Phillips and Thos. McMannus, to foreclose a mortgage, demanding $1,800 was dismissed and the costs paid by the plaintiff.

The motion of the plaintiff in the petition for a drain filed by Charles H. Alger, to strike out and dismiss the remonstrance was overruled by Judge Megee. The case will now be heard on the petition.

The viewers appointed in the ditch proceedings brought by Walter Binford, et al, were given further time by the court. They are to report by March 16.

Helping the Manu- facturer Who Helps You

Mr. Merchant:—Work with the manufacturer who is enterprising enough to help make a market for you rather than with the one who does nothing.

Of course, you must keep the kind of goods the public wants.

But where all things are equal you should let it be known that you will be more friendly towards the goods of the man who helps you market them than to the one who stocks up your shelves with his goods and lets you get rid of them the best way you can.

As a rule, advertised goods under a standard name are of better quality than the nondescript kind, because the manufacturer of the former is striving to build a reputation.

When you put your own name on a brand of goods you are pretty certain as to the quality—are you not?

The manufacturer has more at stake than you have.

The reason the public favors advertised goods is that it has come to know that advertised brands are usually the best.

CONGRESS ASKED TO ARM AND TRAIN BOYS FOR WAR

Movement to Supply Them With the 334,000 "Krag" on Hand.

A concerted effort will be made in congress by friends of rifle practice to secure the enactment of a law to permit the secretary of war to issue old "Krag" rifles, with ammunition, for use by rifle clubs organized throughout the country under the rules of the national board for the promotion of rifle practice. The proposed law also will be designed to permit the issuance of similar ordnance supplies, not of the existing service model and therefore not necessary for the maintenance of the proper army reserve supply, to schools having a uniformed corps of cadets and carrying on military training.

The ordnance department of the army has on hand about 300,000 model 1898 30-caliber magazine rifles, popularly known as the Krag, and 34,000 carbines available for issue to rifle clubs.

Under the proposed statute forty rounds of ball cartridges suitable for the rifles issued would be allotted for each range at which target practice is had, the total not to exceed 120 rounds a year for each one participating in the practice. Supplies would be issued to regulations prescribed by the secretary of war, insuring the desired use of the property as well as its proper care and its ultimate return to the federal government.

War department officials agree that the training of the youth of the country is a fundamental principle of national defense. They declare that, although this principle is universally recognized, the United States is doing less than any other nation to instruct its boys and young men in the use and knowledge of firearms.

Lieutenant Colonel John T. Thompson of the army ordnance department, representing Henry S. Breckinridge, assistant secretary of war, on the executive council of the National Rifle association, suggests that if boys in the public schools once became interested in rifle practice they would continue it in the higher schools or in civilian rifle clubs. Often, he says, they continue rifle shooting in the national guard, and so the proper promotion of these rifle clubs will indirectly be a great help to enlistments in national guard organizations.

CHAIN OF POOR MEN'S BANKS.

Side Lights on Loan Project In Which Carnegie Is Interested.

A system of industrial loan banks on a scale much larger than has ever before been attempted in this country is about to begin operations in New York and elsewhere.

The movement has for its purpose the elimination of the loan shark by enabling workmen to get small loans without security other than good character.

Andrew Carnegie and Vincent Astor are said to be interested in the project, which is under the direction of Dr. Elgin R. L. Gould of New York.

Julian Rosenwald of Chicago is another leading promoter of the scheme.

The experiments on which the larger movement is to a certain extent predicated, according to Dr. Gould, have taken place in sixteen cities and towns during the last four years.

While the scheme is philanthropic in its nature, Dr. Gould says it is to be undertaken only after experiments convince the organizers that it will pay its own way and be in no sense a charity.

Ship Without Under Water Propellers.

Charles Bethune of Sydney, N. S., announces that he has completed a model of a ship without propellers or any kind of machinery under the water line. He says the invention is practical for ocean liners and that one so equipped could make the passage from St. Paul's island to Lundy island, England, in fifty hours.

JURY RETURNS A VERDICT QUICKLY

Finds Dr. Charles M. Clayton Not Guilty of Murder of Joseph H. Stout in 5 Minutes.

HE IS AFFECTED BY VERDICT

[Special to the Daily Republican.]

Lebanon, Ind., Feb. 28.—Within five minutes after receiving instructions, the jury in the case of Dr. Charles M. Clayton of Indianapolis, charged with the murder of Joseph H. Stout, reached a verdict of acquittal. Only one ballot was taken. Within ten minutes the verdict had been read in open court and the defendant was a free man. Dr. Clayton unexpectedly returned to his home in Indianapolis one day last September and found his wife receiving the caresses of Stout, who was a driver of an oil wagon. He shot the man.

The crowd which had packed the courtroom to its limit anticipated an early verdict and remained. Many in the audience could not restrain themselves and when the verdict of "not guilty" was read, expressions of noisy approval were heard all over the room before they could be checked by the court.

Dr. Clayton, although he was confident of acquittal, was deeply affected by the verdict. He sank forward on the table at which he sat and his frame shook with the sobs he could not repress. For several minutes after he had gained control of his emotions he was kept busy greeting the people who pressed forward to extend congratulations.

CAUGHT AFTER YEAR'S LIBERTY

David A. Rigrish, Wanted in Frankfort to Serve Jail Sentence, Captured in California.

HE OPERATED "BLIND TIGER"

[Special to the Daily Republican.]

Frankfort, Ind., Feb. 28.—David J. Rigrish, an Indianapolis man, who is wanted here to serve a jail sentence of five months and to pay a fine of $500 for operating a "blind tiger," has been arrested in California, according to a telegram received from John Miller, sheriff of Clinton county. Rigrish forfeited a cash bond of $1,500 when he failed to appear in the circuit court here more than a year ago to be sentenced, after the supreme court had refused a new trial.

Rigrish was arrested at Los Angeles last week, but before the sheriff could reach there, he being delayed by storms and high waters, Rigrish obtained his freedom by habeas corpus action. However, Rigrish was shadowed by California police officers until Mr. Miller arrived. The sheriff is now enroute home with the prisoner.

Interstellar Space.

That interstellar space is not absolute void, but is partly filled with particles of matter, however small or invisible, is the theory that an American astronomer has evolved through the study of comets.

His theory is based upon the fact that all bodies fall at the same rate in a vacuum, but in the open air lighter bodies are retarded by friction and fall at a slower rate. If interstellar space were a vacuum all stars, comets and planets would keep the same relative position and speed. But if it were not a vacuum the lighter celestial bodies, such as comets, would tend to be retarded by friction and fall behind the larger and denser bodies.

This retarding would be most noticeable at the part of the comet's orbit which is farthest from the sun, and the comet would tend to change its movement at this point and assume an individual direction. This hypothesis seems to be borne out by his observations.—Popular Mechanics.

Rough Training at Eton.

Early in the last century many boys at Eton, England, had to undergo a rough training. An old Etonian who left the school in 1834 describes his experiences there as "worse than that of many inmates of a workhouse or jail. To get up at 5 on freezing winter mornings; to sweep their own floors and make their own beds; to go two by two to the pump for a scanty wash; to eat no mouthful of food until 9 a. m.; to live on an endless round of mutton, potatoes and beer, none of them too plentiful or too good; to sleep in a dismal cell without chair or table—such was the lot of boys whose parents could not afford to pay for a private room. Some of these underwent privations that might have broken down a cabin boy and would be thought inhuman if inflicted on a galley slave."

JOSEPH W. FOLK

Former Governor of Missouri Given $10,000 Government Job.

Washington, Feb. 28.—Joseph W. Folk, solicitor for the state department and ex-Governor of Missouri, yesterday tendered his resignation to Secretary Bryan, to take effect today. Mr. Folk has accepted the offer made by the interstate commerce commission to become its chief counsel at $10,000 a year.

SCANDAL HEIGHTENED IN THAT ARMY TRIAL

Conflicting Orders Confuse Court Martial.

New London, Conn., Feb. 28.—Major Benjamin M. Koehler's court martial has been thrown into confusion and the scandal so far attending it has been heightened by the departure for the Philippines of Major General Thomas H. Barry, commanding the department of the east.

General Barry, who ordered a secret court martial, had left Governor's Island but a few hours, it is said there, when an order came from Secretary of War Garrison declaring the Koehler trial open to the public.

The order hardly had reached Fort Terry, where the trial had started, when an appeal from it was telegraphed back to Washington.

No session was held today, and it is uncertain when the court will reconvene.

Tennessee's Saloons Close Tonight.

Nashville, Tenn., Feb. 28.—Tonight all saloons in Tennessee will close and all breweries will discontinue work, as on March 1 the prohibition "nuisance act" passed in the stormy days of the third session of the legislature last fall will become effective. Memphis will be affected most, for neither the saloons nor the breweries there paid any attention to the state-wide prohibition act passed in 1909. But the saloons will shut down tonight by voluntary action. Liquor will not be allowed to be sold by druggists on physicians' prescriptions.

Woman Sent to Death House.

Salamanca, N. Y., Feb. 28.—Mrs. Cynthia Buffum was found guilty in the first degree for the poisoning of her husband by means of arsenic poisoning. Judge Brown sentenced her to be electrocuted at Auburn during the week of April 6, and she left this morning for the death house at Auburn under guard.

Adelaide, Feb. 28.—Dr. Douglas Mawson, the Australasian explorer, has returned here from the antarctic on board the Aurora.

National Conversations.

If you see three men standing together on the sidewalk in any given country, you can guess the subject of their conversation. In Germany it is the army; in Russia, the bureaucracy; in France, women; in the United States, business; in England, sport, and in Turkey nothing at all.—Brussels Journal.

His Manifold Aspect.

Small Boy—Mamma, is it really true that the devil has horns and a club foot? The Mother—Ah, my dear, sometimes the devil appears in the shape of a very handsome and charming young man! Small Boy (pityingly)—Oh, mummy, you're thinking of Cupid!—London Punch.

Only One Mood.

Inquisitive Friend—Don't you find that your wife is very subject to moods? Enpeck—No; she has only one mood, the imperative, and I'm the one that's subject to that!—Judge.

Heart and Hard.

The surname Heart is really a corruption of Hard, which was a name given to show that the owner was a man of firm character and resolute bearing.

SELF DEFENSE WILL BE PLEA

George Brown Claims He Was Forced to Kill Officer Raiding "Blind Tiger" in Ingalls.

TRIAL TO BE AT ANDERSON

Son Was Implicated by His Father When he Was Tried on Murder Charge—Is Out on Bond

(By United Press.)

Anderson, Ind., Feb. 28.—A murder trial said to have resulted indirectly from an attempt to enforce the liquor laws will begin here Monday. Father and son, alleged associates of the violators of these state laws, are involved. George W. Brown, aged 25 popularly known as "Little Billy," is charged with the murder of Constable Albert Hawkins of Anderson at Ingalls on the night of July 9, 1913. His father, William W. Brown, who implicated his son when he was himself on trial, is now out on heavy bail pending an appeal. He was found guilty of second degree murder.

Self defense will probably be the course chosen by the attorneys for "Little Billy" Brown. The trial will be here. "Little Billy" and his father were jointly indicted for first degree murder by the Madison county grand jury last summer, as a result of the killing of Hawkins.

The death of Hawkins occurred on a dark, drizzly night. Frequent raids of alleged "blind tigers" in Ingalls, which had resulted in the arrest of Oris Camp charged with keeping a "blind tiger" in a hotel owned by Trustee Brown, are said to have led up to trouble between the Browns and Constable Hawkins.

On the night of his death, Hawkins went to Ingalls unarmed, it is said, to obtain some evidence of illegal sale of liquor. Shortly after 9 o'clock Hawkins and "Little Billy" Brown are said to have met and quarreled. About 11 o'clock Trustee Brown returned from Fortville and is said to have found his son angered over his encounter with Hawkins.

Later Hawkins met the two men in front of Brown's hotel. There was trouble, which resulted in Hawkins' death. His body was found at 11:30 that night lying in a pool of blood. Officers from Anderson arrested the Browns. The coroner declared death due to a knife wound in the neck.

The elder Brown was tried in Grant county on a charge of venue and found guilty of second degree murder. He was sentenced to Michigan City prison but was released on $10,000 appeal bond. He is now actively engaged in business in Ingalls.

A strange feature is that the father openly implicated his son in the murder of Hawkins. During his trial he said that in a shuffle following words with the constable, "Little Billy" stabbed Hawkins. He said the constable had threatened to do harm to the younger Brown.

New Resident Pays Compliments to Local Merchants

A new resident of Rushville, whom we will call Smith, because that is not his name, just recently had occasion to have dealings with a number of Rushville concerns.

Smith built himself a house recently, and as he expresses it, "It is some house." He made a careful study of the local concerns, and below he tells of the people, from whom he bought.

"I walked into the Robbins-Nipp Insurance & Real Estate Office one day. They picked out a lot in one of your beautiful residence districts, and I bought it at a surprisingly low price. They had no trouble in selling a fire insurance policy in one of the many strong companies that they represent. Robbins-Nipp Agency sell insurance that really insures.

The Case Lumber Yard gave me lowest prices on my lumber, and showed me that they had facilities for turning out the work that I wanted, with the result that they got my contract. Mr. Grindle handled my order in record time.

John S. Beale, our leading contractor, naturally got the plumbing and heating job. Mr. Beale has a new, large and roomy building, "on the Square," and he can handle anything at all in this line. For equipment and facilities, I hand the blue ribbon to Mr. Beale.

I went to see Ed Crosby when I got ready for my painting and decorating. He took me out and allowed me to inspect some of his work, and now I am a Crosby booster. Quality and price considered, Crosby's work is the best I have ever seen.

I had my slating and tinning done by Walter Perkins, who has his office at Frazee's Lumber Yard. Mr. Perkins is an expert in his line, and I do not look for any trouble from leaking roofs. For his good work, his price was very reasonable.

I had the Mahin Electric Co. install all of my electric fixtures. Mr. Mahin has had a number of years experience in the electric line, and he is an authority in that work. I left everything to him, to use his best judgment, and he installed fixtures which I am sure are the best made. All of my light globes are the famous Fostoria Mazdas.

I always buy good things when I buy, because I figure that they are the cheapest in the end. That is the reason I went to Fred A. Caldwell to purchase my house furnishings. Mr. Caldwell carries some splendid lines of furniture, and has as complete an assortment of designs as the average big town store.

In buying a piano, we decided we could get more satisfaction, and many pleasant hours with a Kimball Player-Piano than with any other. It brings to our home the highest type of music, and it combines all the beautiful features of tone, touch and artistic finish that characterize the Kimball Player-Piano. The Boxley Piano Co., are the Kimball factory representatives in Rushville and vicinity.

Mrs. Smith has one great hobby, and that is pretty chinaware and silverware, and Kennard's is where she gets just what she wants.

We could not have done better at Indianapolis. Kennard's also carry the largest line of watches, diamonds, jewelry in Rushville.

Mrs. Smith buys her nicknacks, toys, cups and saucers at Bell's Red Front store and Bazaar. Mr. Bell carries everything, so it is only natural that he gets the largest business. The Red Front Store carries as complete a line as the trust 5 and 10 cent stores.

We brought some of our carpets, rugs, and curtains with us, and they were sadly in need of cleaning. We sent them to Ball & Bebout and they came back, looking like new. I believe that a number of housewives in Rushville are not aware of the fact that this concern thoroughly dry cleans house furnishings, besides the usual pressing and cleaning of clothing.

My own clothes I buy from Betker's. He carries the latest pattern any styles, and is our leading haberdasher. Betker is the local representative of Ed V. Price Co. Who's your tailor?

Our drug store supplies we get at the Penslar Drug Store, F. B. Johnson & Co. They have a most complete line of drugs, sundries and toilet articles.

For shoes, well, there is no place like Bodine's. Mr. Bodine handles Queen Quality. Keith's Conquerer, and Dr. Reed's cushion shoes.

A RACE FOR FOOD

It Was Slow and Painful and Over Arctic Ice Fields.

PLIGHT OF TWO EXPLORERS.

Their Fight Against Death by Starvation and the Visions That Were Conjured Up by the Torture of the Maddening Pangs of Hunger.

The terrible phantom that haunts every traveler in the desert is the possibility that he will not find water. The arctic explorer rarely suffers from thirst, but another danger, equally terrible and menacing, is always on his trail—starvation.

In "Lost in the Arctic" Captain Ejnar Mikkelsen, the explorer who, after having been given up for dead for over two years, was picked up in east Greenland by a sailing vessel, gives a graphic account of his race against hunger. Their sledge dogs dead, their outfits abandoned, every morsel of food long since devoured, the only hope of Mikkelsen and his companion was to reach 17 Kilometer Naeset, where, on the fall trip, they had left a few tins of food.

"Every two hours we make a short halt, but the rest is spoiled by the thought of the uncomfortable quarter of an hour that awaits us when we start and try to get our stiffened muscles into working order again. Our feet especially are very painful; the ankles are swollen and horribly tender.

"The pangs of hunger increase every minute. For my own part, I can think of nothing but food. At first my thoughts dwell upon all sorts of dishes, but gradually they concentrate themselves upon sandwiches—Danish sandwiches. In particular my fancy turns upon the food that I have seen given away to beggars, and I grow furious at the thought of the contempt with which these gentry often regard such gifts.

"Gradually the thought takes possession of me that I am walking in the streets of Copenhagen, eagerly on the lookout for sandwiches. Suddenly I spy what I am seeking, a little white object lying to the right of me. I turn to pick it up, but as I stop my foot strikes against a stone. The shock brings me back to stern reality. I take in my belt and stagger on again.

"Iversen is in no better case. I notice that he frequently stops and peers through the fieldglass at something on ahead; then he lets the glass fall again, with a shake of the head. Once or twice I ask what he is looking at, but the answer is always the same—he thought he had discovered a case of provisions, but it turned out to be a rock.

"According to our reckoning, we ought to reach 17 Kilometer Naeset by about 6 in the evening. We keep a sharp lookout for the point and sight something about 4 o'clock that looks like it. Once more, however, we are doomed to disappointment. It is not the point.

"We pass many old camping places, relics of the Denmark expedition; but, although we search long and carefully among the old tins for any remains of food, we find nothing. In the gathering darkness every point we approach seems to us the one we seek. Encouraged by the thought of food, we redouble our efforts. But when we get close enough to see that it is not the point our flickering flame of energy dies down, and we stagger sullenly along with bowed heads.

"We have no longer any idea of our whereabouts, and it is indescribably uncanny to see time after time the same headland with the two small hillocks at its foot, the ghost of 17 Kilometer Naeset. About 10 o'clock, half mad with hunger and exhaustion, we give it up and, creeping as close together as possible, try to sleep. But the pain in Iversen's leg is so great that he cannot sleep, and he is half out of his mind. He wakes me at midnight and begs me to go on.

"It is bitterly cold, and the wind has shifted so that it is blowing in our faces. Staggering unsteadily and feeling our way with our sticks, off we go into the darkness.

"Finally, after another long march, we sight a point that resembles 17 Kilometer Naeset, and this time it is no trick of the imagination. The race is won, for at the point we find fuel and tins of soup and peas."

Amusements

The Gem will show a two reel 101 Bison feature "Bloodhounds of the North" for the first picture tonight. This picture gives a good account of the Canadian mounted police and the adventures of the northwest. The picture is said to be a thriller and the scenes are realistic. The other is an Imp drama, "The Actor's Christmas." King Baggot is featured in this one. Monday night a two reel Imp drama with Leah Baird, "Love or a Throne" will be shown.

The Princess will show a Lubin drama "A LOVE OF '64" for the first picture tonight. Ormi Hawley and Edear Jones are featured. The second is a Vitagraph drama entitled "Up in a Balloon." Clara Kimball Young is shown and it is said to be a sensational picture, showing a balloon ascension. The last is an Edison comedy "Falling in Love With Inez."

"The Traffic," a new four-act play by Rachael Marshall, which is booked to appear at the Marat Theatre, Indianapolis, for one week, commencing Monday, March 2nd, is said to be the most audaciously truthful exposition of the actual phases of the commerce in young girls as yet written or acted. The story of the piece is taken from real life in any city, but the incidents and circumstances are facts of record. The shock of the play is its absolute fidelity to truth; the naked truth told in the language of the men and women who make nameless traffic possible and the scenes and incidents reproduced without disguise and hesitation. To project such a play without any sacrifice of dignity or decency, to portray the swift but logical transformation of a decent working girl into a shameless, hopeless and reckless creature, may seem to be an impossible feat. And yet it is said that "The Traffic" accomplishes this apparent impossibility. The false notion that innocence and ignorant virgins leap pure poverty to open bawdry at one bound is exploded in Miss Marshall's authentic play. Long hours, hard work, sick sister, the pinch of poverty and the hopeless environment all play their part in "The Traffic," but the girl resists, hopes, prays—even loves mistakenly, fatuously, but she does not become a wanton suddenly. The man panderer, seducer, procurer of this astonishing play, pays the penalty of his atrocious deeds with his life; and the invalid child for whom the heroine sells both soul and body is saved to health, virtue and happiness. But the woman who has made the incredible sacrifice, who put all of the best and the worst of herself into the traffic that destroyed her while it saved her sister, she is past redemption, hardened vulgarized, without a chance to retrace her errant footsteps, ostracized by all decent people forbidden even the society of her little sister, she plunges faster and further into the delirious life of the brothel. There is no escape from the adamant logic of this denouncement, and if it is not a pretty or pleasant thing to witness, it will make men and women think long and earnestly about the distorted social conditions that make such incidents not only possible, but inevitable. "The Traffic" comes direct from Chicago after four months' run at Howard's Theater, with the original Chicago cast. Popular Matinees will be given on Wednesday and Saturday.

Know Your Library.

One is lead to wonder how many people in Rushville and Rush county know how the public library in the court house has grown and thrived. There are at least more than two thousand, but there are many times that number who probably never saw inside the room.

A comparatively small per cent of the population is using the library, and it is intended that it should be for all the people. It is not the fault of the library board. It must be the fault of the people. It is hardly fair, either, to set it down as a fault but it might not be termed an oversight!

The fifty people, many of whom had not been in touch with the library and knew of the rapid strides it has made, out for the lecture last night, became more familiar with its context. Volumes upon volumes of the richest things in literature are tucked away on the shelves.

It is much to the credit of the library board that the program is to buy only stable fiction, and then devote the rest of the funds to standard works on all subjects. The public should appreciate the very special effort of the board to give the people what they want and it now falls to their lot to co-operate to the end that the library may be stocked with the best obtainable for the money. The people should understand it is their money which is being spent, and of course it is their privilege to make suggestions.

The board wants to act on suggestions of the people. Already many standard volumes on subjects of special interests are on the shelves, but it is desired others be added as fast as funds will allow. If the library is appreciated and co-operation between the board and the people prevails, much greater things are in store for this institution in Rushville.

MORE INDICTMENTS IN FRANKLIN CASE

Six Wall Street Brokers Now Facing Charges.

New York, Feb. 28.—United States District Court Judge Hollister has just received sealed indictments against six Wall street brokers in connection with alleged stock selling frauds of Franklin's, Inc., candy manufacturers, whose president, F. N. Franklin, has already been indicted with Hova Adolphus Brown, a broker, by the federal grand jury.

It is alleged that the six defendants continued to sell the company's stock to the public notwithstanding the first arrests. Before the first indictments, it is said, $500,000 in stock had been unloaded and now the public has $500,000 more.

The government contends that the company promised a profit of 1,000 per cent on the sale of its stock. At the time the concern's stock was put on the market the plant at Long Island City had not been completed. The names of the indicted brokers have been withheld.

TELLS OF EFFECT OF NEW METHODS

H. M. Waite, "Boss" of Dayton, O.,

Declares Party Politics Detrimental to City Government.

TALKS TO WATER SUPPLY MEN

This Afternoon he Explains the Commission—Manager Form Obtaining in Dayton.

(By United Press.)

Indianapolis, Ind., Feb. 28.—H. M. Waite, the manager of Dayton, O., who operates that city on a business basis of efficiency and economy rather than as legitimate spoils for the party in power, told here this afternoon the effect of the new form of city government upon publicly operated utilities. This was his first public address since becoming head of the new business enterprise—the City of Dayton.

Waite, who spoke before the Indiana State Sanitary and Water Supply association, asked the question, "can the local public utilities be operated as cheaply and efficiently by the city government as by the corporation?" His answer to his own question was: "We believe we have the most business-like form of government yet proposed in this country—in fact, it is the form of organization under which our private corporations have had such phenomenal success, and we can accordingly see no reason why it will not prove the best form of city government under which to operate public utilities."

The city manager criticized the form of city government based on two main political parties struggling for control of the city's affairs. "One party is in power and entrenched, the other waiting to be entrenched and not above intrigue and distortion of facts to gain ascendancy. Apparently our idea of improving municipal conditions in reverses the situation. This operation continued indefinitely and the improvement likewise was indefinite."

That this form of government places in power a "wonderful unofficial spirit inspired by love of gain or power, but who always remained in the background and, being unofficial, was unassailable," was Waite's assertion. He said this power behind the throne held his organization together by promise of city positions and that efficiency in party organization rather than in city management was the deciding factor in the choice.

The commission form of government, he said, was the next experiment. "Again we are confronted by failure of the ballot to select the right men to take charge of particular functions of government that required training and experience for efficiency."

Explaining the Commission-Manager form which obtains in Dayton, Waite said the commission of five is elected. It in turn selects a business manager for the city. "The commission, in a corporation, would represent the directorate, the manager would represent the executive head or the president of the corporation. He selects the heads of his departments—Service, Safety, Welfare, Finance and Law."

"Under the old form we voted for the heads of the various departments. It would be just as reasonable to expect a corporation desiring to fill a particular vacancy to go out and ask the neighborhood to vote on someone to fill that particular place."

Mr. Waite said that the corporation would choose the men believed capable of performing the function with the greatest economy and efficiency, and would pay him in accordance with his worth to the business. He said that in Dayton he had employed directors after a careful study of the situation, and had chosen all but one from material available in Dayton.

"The director of Welfare has charge of health, parks, playgrounds, charities and social betterment. The director selected has made this work a study and has spent several summers abroad studying social conditions in foreign cities." He said the director of Finance had spent his life as treasurer, auditor and purchasing agent of manufacturies in Dayton, and as a public accountant. The city attorney is one of the leading attorneys in Dayton. The director of Service has had experience in construction work and was Waite's principal assistant as city engineer of Cincinnati.

Waite said he did not know the political faith of any appointee that he had made. He simply insisted on efficiency, economy and loyalty.

"The great trouble with all municipal government has been lack of interest by the citizens," said Waite.

HAS REMEDY FOR LABOR PROBLEM

Would Stop Immigration For Period of Ten Years as a Temporary Solution to Question.

PROVIDE FOR UNEMPLOYED

Extensive Public Works, National, State and Municipal Would Give Relief Says John Walker.

(By United Press.)

New York, Feb. 28.—Stopping of labor immigration for a period of ten years, until our own unemployed can be absorbed in the channels of employment and the initiation of extensive public works, national, state and municipal, was advocated today as a temporary remedy for the present problem of unemployment by President John W. Walker, of the Illinois Federation of Labor.

Walker, here to attend the National conference on employment, gave the United Press the following statement:

"The permanent solution of the unemployment problem does not yet appear, but there are temporary steps which could be well taken to secure relief. I believe we should enact legislation providing employment insurance; stop all labor immigration for a period of say ten years, until we have assimilated and provided for the labor we now have in our own country; eliminate child labor, and as far as possible woman labor, providing of course for the male sex getting wages enough properly to care for both the women and children also, and to shorten the days work for men.

"Then start public works, such as the deep waterway from New Orleans to Chicago, and similar project which are necessary, and in the course of time will pay thousands of times over the cost of having it done.

"If municipality and state could start projects of the same character; building of roads; buying land and building modern homes for the working people to live in after they, at moderate rentals, get back the cost of these buildings, then renting them to the people at cost of maintenance; make parks and playgrounds, public health recreation pleasure resorts. All this will give us present relief from the problem of the unemployed."

MUST GO TO SUNDAY SCHOOL

Court Puts Wabash Boy on Unusual Probation For a Year.

Wabash, Ind., Feb. 28.—For the first time in the history of the municipal court in Wabash a prisoner has been sentenced to Sunday school. Judge Wilson is determined the conditions shall be carried out to the letter. The sentence will not be suspended. A boy was brought into police court charged with petit larceny. Mrs. Sarah Ciders, a neighbor, was the prosecuting witness. She said the boy had stolen a dollar from her. The prisoner pleaded not guilty.

Judge Wilson found the lad guilty. "I shall fine you $2 and costs," said the judge, "which will amount to $15. That will be suspended, however. Then I shall sentence you to one year in Sunday school. Each Sunday morning you will be required to report to W. J. Creighton, superintendent of the First Methodist Episcopal Sunday school. If you ever miss for any reason other than sickness or death you will be brought back into court and your case will be reopened."

Industrial conditions are rapidly improving in the Pittsburgh districts.

FRANK W. MONDELL

Wyoming Congressman Takes Issue With President Wilson.

WILSON'S POLICY IS OPENLY CRITICISED

Minority Party in House No Longer Silent.

Washington, Feb. 28.—In criticism of the Mexican policy of the Wilson administration, another speech has been made in the house, this time by Representative Mondell of Wyoming, a Republican leader. This is the third time this week that a Republican has denounced in the house the president's policy of "watchful waiting" over Mexico.

From now on it is the purpose of the house Republicans to comment on developments in the Mexican situation, thus departing from the policy of silence adopted at the instance of the administration.

Representative Mondell criticised in sharp terms the foreign policy of Secretary of State Bryan and intimated that Mr. Bryan had not given that attention to affairs in Mexico that their importance warranted.

Mr. Mondell declared that he was convinced that the policy of "watchful waiting" had prolonged "the lamentable conditions of appalling disorder and distress which prevail in Mexico."

Dore Victim of Assassin.

Muskogee, Okla., Feb. 28.—Patrick Dore was shot and killed at Westville, the bullet striking him in the back and killing him instantly as he walked down the street. Tandy Folsom is under arrest charged with the shooting. Dore was Roosevelt's personal bodyguard at the Chicago convention in 1912.

Then Took His Own Life.

Hammond, Ind., Feb. 28.—Peter Lapovich of East Chicago shot his wife and then killed himself. The woman may die. A boarder in the Lapovich home heard the two quarreling in their bedroom and the shooting followed. Mrs. Lapovich recently had caused her husband's arrest after he had beaten her.

TERSE TELEGRAMS

"Basic developments continue favorable," says Bradstreet's report for the week.

Sarah A. Eldridge, eighty-three years old, committed suicide at Logansport by hanging herself from a rafter in a barn.

Fire starting from a defective flue destroyed the elevator of the Montpelier (Ind.) Grain and Milling company. The loss is $15,000.

Strong defense of the Pacific coast by marines is authorized in the naval appropriation bill, which will soon be reported in the house.

Definite arrangements for a match between Jack Johnson and Frank Moran have been closed. The fight will take place in Paris on June 17.

"While weather conditions had a tendency to check progress in commercial and industrial channels, reports from the leading centers continue optimistic in tenor," says Dun's weekly review.

The senate has passed the bill giving effect to the provisions of the fisheries treaty with Great Britain, which is intended to regulate the fisheries in the boundary waters between the United States and Canada.

Four indictments have been ordered by the grand jury which has been investigating graft conditions on Blackwell's Island, charging perjury against men connected with furnishing supplies to the penitentiary workshop.

It was disclosed at a meeting of the house committee on foreign affairs that an overwhelming majority of that body is opposed to taking action on any resolution of inquiry that may be introduced bearing on the Mexican situation.

A resolution addressed to President Wilson asking him to give immediate attention to the problem of unemployment in this country was passed at a mass meeting in New York where unemployment and methods of overcoming it was discussed.

LIBRARY ADDS TO ITS SHELVES

effect of this measure is the fact that persons entering the court house after night are free to go to any of the corridors on the second or third floor. This is held to be objectionable.

It has been suggested from a number of sources that access to the upper corridors might be barred by gates which could be installed at the entrance to the two halls leading off the first floor corridor to the stairs going to the upper stories.

In all probability in the near future the commissioners will be asked to install those gates so that the court house may be left open every night. It has long been contended by many that the court house should be open at night for various reasons.

Few people are familiar with what the library board is doing. There are now two thousand and thirty-six patrons, which shows a remarkable interest in the institution. The patronage is increasing all the time. In the last three months alone four hundred dollars worth of new books have been purchased. Only recently approximately 7 hundred new volumes have been added.

One of the most valuable additions to the library of recent date is the six volumes of Larned's ready reference history. Only the very best in fiction and poetry is to be found on the shelves.

To be found in complete form are Shakespeare, Emerson, Dickens, Hawthorne, Stevenson, Kipling, Hugo, Thackeray, Elliott and many others. Only recently have been added the poets complete in the Cambridge edition.

Many technical works are already on the shelves and others will be added as fast as funds allow and suggestions are made. To be found there now are works on city government, immigration and labor, Panama, farm topics, advertising, bibliography, window decorating, mechanical subjects and numerous others.

In addition the library has the following magazines current on the tables in the room, which are free to the use of any persons: Youth's Companion, St. Nicholas, Scientific American, Atlantic Monthly, Everybody's, Outlook, Century, American, Saturday Evening Post, Harper's Ladies Home Journal, Country Gentleman, McClure's, Independent, Good Housekeeping, Modern Priscilla and Little Folks. The Forum and Bookman are to be added at once.

STORK VISITS COURTHOUSE
County Building at Fort Wayne Is Put to a New Use.
Fort Wayne, Ind., Feb. 28.—The stork invaded the Allen county building, when Mrs. Lawrence Schoppmann, wife of a young farmer, gave birth to a baby daughter in the woman's room. Physicians and an ambulance were summoned and the mother and her baby were hurried to Hope hospital. Mr. and Mrs. Schoppmann were in the city shopping and had an appointment to meet at a specified corner to return home. The ambulance with his wife and daughter passed the husband on its way to the hospital. After a long wait the husband became alarmed and appealed to the police. Then he learned that he was a father.

Fort Wayne, Ind., Feb. 28.—Eleven persons charged with contempt of court in having disobeyed the order of Judge Walter A. Funk when they refused to permit the installation of the Rev. Father Stanislaus Gruza as priest of St. Casimir's Polish Catholic church in rioting at the church a few weeks ago, will be tried in the circuit court March 6. The defendants pleaded not guilty to the charge when arraigned in court and were released on bond to appear for trial in March.

Colored Murderer Sentenced.
Evansville, Ind., Feb. 28.—A jury in the Vanderburg circuit court found Walter Munday, a negro, guilty of manslaughter, and he was sentenced to the state reformatory for two to twenty-one years. Munday last December shot and killed Mrs. Bessie Childs, a colored woman.

"Gross Insult" Ended in Death.
Metz, Germany, Feb. 28.—Lieutenant Haage was killed in a duel with Lieutenant George, a comrade. The encounter was brought about by a "gross insult," according to the official report.

Singing Evangelist Who Will Assist In Revival Here

L. A. HARRIMAN

Mr. Harriman is a singing evangelist of Martinsville, Indiana. He will assist the Rev. A. D. Batchelor, pastor of the St. Paul M. E. church, in a revival which will begin at the church, Monday, March 9, a week

The Rev. Mr. Batchelor came to the charge here from Martinsville and is well acquainted with Mr. Harriman.

It will be recalled that the Rushville ministers considered a plan to hold simultaneous revival meetings this winter, but the plan was later abandoned with the understanding that most of the churches would hold meetings anyway.

Washington, February 28.—An increase in the maximum pay of rural carriers from $1100 to $1200 was adopted by the senate this afternoon at the beginning of the discussion of the postoffice appropriation bill. Leaders expected the bill would be passed before adjournment today as most of the points of difference had been disposed of.

TAFT WARNS TO KEEP HANDS OFF

Former President Gives Some Advice to the Interventionists in Washington Speech.

POINTS OUT DIFFICULTIES

He Declares This Class Does Not Understand What it Would Mean to the Government.

[Special to the Daily Republican.]

Washington, Feb. 28.—Last night former President William H. Taft lifted his voice in a warning to the American people against intervention in Mexico. It was the first time Mr. Taft has commented publicly on any of the delicate foreign problems confronting the Wilson administration. Mr. Taft was speaking before the National Geographic society. In regard to Mexico he said:

"The situation is in such a condition that it will be improper for me to comment on it, except to say this: That those who lightly look forward to intervention either are utterly regardless of the loss of life and the expenditure of immense treasure, or else they don't know what armed intervention on the part of this government in Mexico will mean. Those of us who have had experience in the tranquilizing of a tropical country with a people not very different from the Mexicans, who take naturally to guerilla warfare, and who would rather fight than work—that is, rather fight and run than work—know the difficulties that an army would have to meet to accomplish the only purpose that we would have in going in, to-wit, the bringing about of law and order."

Mr. Taft at White House.

Washington, Feb. 28.—Former President Taft took luncheon at the White House yesterday with President Wilson.

RUSHVILLE LOSES TO MILROY AGAIN

Anderson Township Lads Win From Local High School on Their Own Floor, 26 to 22.

GAME IS ROUGH THROUGHOUT

The Rushville high school basketball team met the second defeat of the season by the Milroy high school, last night, 26 to 22. The game was much closer than the one which was played here a week ago.

The local boys went to Milroy last night determined to make a better showing than that of a week ago and started the game by throwing many goals. The score at the end of the first half found Rushville in the lead, 13 to 7. The second half started out slowly and Milroy came back with eighteen points before the locals had any. The score then stood 25 to 13. Rushville woke up and before the whistle blew had recorded 22 points, and if they had had five more minutes to play the Rushville score would have been much larger, as Milroy began to weaken. Frazier starred at guard for the locals and got two field goals. Farthing a forward, got four field goals and Hinkle two. The rest of the team played good ball.

The game was rough at periods and time had to be called out for several moments. The Rushville team will close the season with a game at Richmond next Friday night.

MANY SAY IT IS PLAY TO STANDS

Believes Congressman Gray is Searching For Limelight When he Talks About Legislation.

REGARDING CHILD ABDUCTION

Refers to Winters Case Which is a Year Old But Has Just Been Discovered by Him.

Finly Gray, representative in congress from this district, has, after almost a year, just discovered that Catherine Winters disappeared from Newcastle. Many declare this is another play to the grandstand. After many attempts were made to obtain federal aid in order to prosecute the search, it remained for a member of congress from another state to take the initiative and introduce a resolution last week calling on the nation to make a general search for the lost child.

Now Congressman Gray, whose only act of national note in congress has been to refuse to contribute $5 towards a wedding gift for the president's daughter, takes advantage of the resolution to break into the limelight. He will urge upon congress the passage of a law to safeguard the children of the United States from the peril of kidnapping. He now believes that a federal law to punish kidnapping, with an extreme penalty of life imprisonment or death, would be a good thing.

The exact provisions of the bill, as it will be finally drawn by Gray, however, will not be determined until he has examined into just how far he can legally go in some of the provisions he wishes to include.

As a safeguard against abductions by gypsies of nomadic tribes, the bill may be drawn to require the registry of such bands, at stated periods each year, with federal officers in territory in which they are traveling. It may also provide for the inspection of the camp of all such roving tribes at given periods and the listing of all the members, with proper description.

The law, as proposed by the congressman from this district, may be needed, but at this time it would help but little in helping find the little Winters child, it is asserted Gray would be doing an act of kindness to the heartbroken father if he would introduce a resolution in congress asking that a reward be posted by the government, many believe. The question of a reward would have been timely last April or May but Congressman Gray may now be too late with his resolution.

Experiment of Domestic Science Student Shows That Laborer Lived on This Amount

THIS IS DONE SCIENTIFICALLY

However There Was Not a Great Variety of Food Because Price Would Not Permit

(By United Press.)

Manhattan, Kas., Feb. 28—"By actual experiment we have discovered that we can feed a day laborer for twenty cents a day," declared Miss Margaret Blanchard, a senior domestic science student of the Kansas State College who helped in the work. "And this imaginary day laborer is a man 35 years old and balancing the scales at 165 pounds, too.

"By scientific investigation and experiment on men working as common ditch diggers, chemists have proved that the daily requirement for one man is 3,400 calories. By the "calorie value" of food we mean the amount of heat given off by any given food substance if it is completely combusted within the body. And it is from this heat we derive our energy. This 3,400 calories, the scientists decided, is best furnished by 4.41 ounces of protein, 4.41 ounces of fat and 15.87 ounces of carbohydrate. On this basis we planned, prepared and served in the laboratory, three meals yielding a total of 3,400 calories. The exact cost was twenty cents. Besides assuming our man to be a ditch digger requiring a certain amount of energy, we made allowance for his appetite and the kind of food he desires.

"By allowing seven cents for breakfast, eight cents for dinner and five cents for supper, we can serve this imaginary laborer three square meals. To be sure, the corners of the "square" cannot be filled in with very many side dishes, but the amount of food principles—protein carbohydrate and fat—are present in correct proportions and his actual needs supplied. We figure he would need 1,200 calories for both breakfast and dinner, and 1,000 calories for supper.

For breakfast we served our laborer rolled oats, with skimmed milk, German fried potatoes, liver graham bread, butter and coffee with skimmed milk and sugar. By using skimmed milk, we reduce the cost and still get good calorie value. And graham bread is more nutritious than white, and just as cheap.

For dinner we prepared meat pie the meat was taken from the neck of beef—with baked potatoes, hominy, bread and oleomargarine, prunes and coffee.

"Supper consisted of rice potatoes, baked beans, sausage, apple sauce, bread and oleomargarine. And lest you forget the importance of minerals in the diet, let me say that the correct proportioning of the food principles, nature provides the necessary amount of mineral content.

"On twenty cents a day the meals cannot be varied very much from day to day. The foods necessarily must remain quite similar, with some chance for variety in the method of preparation. In experimenting with the same laborer on forty cents a day, we find the greatest advantage is in a larger choice of foods. If variety is the spice of life, then on forty cents a day he gets more "spice."

"It was due to careful figuring and a study of foods, that we were able to work out these meals. The housewife perhaps hasn't the scientific knowledge of foods that we acquire here in college but by careful reading in current magazines and newspapers, she can learn the value of different foods and how they should be used."

PLANS LAID FOR ATHLETIC MEET

Possible That Y. M. C. A.'s of State Will go Together in Indianapolis March 21

ONLY DRAW BACK IS EXPENSE

One Held Last Year at Gary Proved Success—Gym and Track Events on Program

(By United Press.)

Indianapolis, Ind., Feb. 28—"Contrary to the general belief, there is a possibility that the state Y. M. C. A. athletic-gymnastic and wrestling meet will not be held this year. Plans have been laid to hold the meet March 21 in this city and the following cities were expected to send teams: South Bend, Gary, Michigan City, LaPorte, Kokomo, Vincennes, Evansville and Indianapolis.

The reason for the hitch in the plans is that some of the associations did not realize that the expenses of the teams would be pooled, and that each team would pay a like amount to and from the meet. When a few of the near-by teams realized that they would pay more expense money than actually spent by their men, they balked.

Roy Horton, physical director of the Indianapolis association who has the proposed meet in charge sent out letters to the nine associations named, explaining the system of pooling expenses and asking whether the associations would agree to send teams under that system. He said today that if a sufficient number of associations agreed there would be a meet, but that if they did not agree, the meet would be called off.

The first meet of this nature was held last year in Gary, and was considered successful, though only four or five teams entered. Indianapolis was assigned as the place for the next meet largely because of its central location. Horton explained that the Indianapolis associations would bear its share of expense even though the team remains at home.

In case of a meet, dope would favor South Bend, Gary Indianapolis, it is believed. The two first named have strong men to choose from, and Indianapolis has numbers. Director I. E. Noakes of Vincennes told Horton that he certainly would send a team, though he could not vouch for its strength. Horton said that was the spirit that would make the meet a success.

Five men will take part in the gymnastic-athletic department of the meet, and three will do the wrestling for each team. The gymn department consists of work on the parallel bars, horizontal bars, horse and a short calisthenic drill. Three men may enter each of the first three and the whole five-men team will work in the last named.

In the athletic department will be the 440-yard dash, the running high jump, the shot put and five-man relay, in the nature of a potato race. This will be run in the same manner as the gym section.

The wrestling will be done by three divisions of weight as follows: 128 pounds, 148 pounds, and heavyweights, or anything over 148 pounds.

The meet last year was small because of the flood. This year it was expected to assume large proportions, and then came the misunderstanding regarding expenses.

MOTOR BOAT SHOW OPENS IN CHICAGO

Fresh Water Sailors of Mississippi Valley Gather at First Annual Meeting

MANY EXHIBITS IN PLACE

(By United Press.)

Chicago, Feb. 28—Led by "fresh water sailors" of the Mississippi Valley Power Boat association, motor boat enthusiasts from all sections of the middle west came to Chicago today to support the first Chicago Motor Boat show which opened at the Coliseum here at noon. Henry J. Sutphen, of New York, chairman of the show committee said he believed that the showing this year would warrant making the exhibition an annual event.

More than a hundred exhibits were in place when the show opened this morning.

They came from Illinois, Wisconsin, Ohio, New Jersey, New York, Michigan, Iowa, Massachusetts, Connecticut, South Carolina, Minnesota and Maine.

A convention of the Mississippi Valley Power boat association and the Eastern Cluster of the Ancient Order of Barnacles will be held here during the show.

The Chemical Detective.

Great is the chemist. A glue factory, which was proud of the sticking qualities of its glue, received many complaints that its glue was not sticking, and the manager believed it was not his product that was at fault, but glue made by some other concern and falsely represented to be his.

The chemist was asked to find a remedy. He made a slight change in the process of manufacture, so that when a certain chemical was applied to the glue any time after it had left the factory the glue would immediately change to a certain color. Salesmen were then given bottles of this chemical. Whenever they were told that their glue had failed they asked to see the faulty work and then dropped some of the chemical on the dry glue. If the proper color appeared it was their glue, otherwise it was a competitor's.

If the customer doubted the test the salesman could prove the fairness of it by trying it on any of his firm's glue. This stopped the complaints.—Saturday Evening Post.

The Oyster.

The oyster is a very ancient institution and a most honorable one. From time immemorial poets have sung of him and orators have dwelt upon his charms. Juvenal, the most illustrious of all satirists, enlivened the literary charms of the reigns of Trojan and Hadrian with his comments on the oyster, and the comments were not satirical either, but warmly commendatory. The oyster, the true cosmopolite, is found pretty nearly everywhere and was the delight of the world for ages upon ages before the man from Genoa found the shores of America.—New York American.

REMARKABLE CASE of Mrs. HAM

Declares Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound
Saved Her Life and Sanity.

Shamrock, Mo.—"I feel it my duty to tell the public the condition of my health before using your medicine. I had falling, inflammation and congestion, female weakness, pains in both sides, backaches and bearing down pains, was short of memory, nervous, impatient, passed sleepless nights, and had neither strength nor energy. There was always a fear and dread in my mind, I had cold, nervous, weak spells, hot flashes over my body. I had a place in my right side that was so sore that I could hardly bear the weight of my clothes. I tried medicines and doctors, but they did me little good, and I never expected to get out again. I got Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Blood Purifier, and I certainly would have been in grave or in an asylum if your medicines had not saved me. But now I can work all day, sleep well at night, eat anything I want, have no hot flashes or weak, nervous spells. All pains, aches, fears and dreads are gone, my house, children and husband are no longer neglected, as I am almost entirely free of the bad symptoms I had before taking your remedies, and all is pleasure and happiness in my home."—Mrs. JOSIE HAM, R. F. D. 1, Box 22, Shamrock, Missouri.

Seven Keys TO Baldpate

EARL DERR BIGGERS

CHAPTER XII.

The Cold Gray Dawn.

IT was still quite dark when he awoke with a start. In the blackness he could make out a figure standing by the side of his bed. He put his hand quickly beneath his pillow—the package was still there.

"What do you want?" he asked, sitting up in bed. For answer the intruder sprang through the door and disappeared in the darkness of the outer room. Mr. Magee followed. One of his windows slammed back and forth in the wind. Slipping on a dressing gown and lighting a candle, he made an investigation. The glass above the lock had been broken. Outside, in the snow on the balcony, were recent footprints.

Sleepily, Mr. Magee procured the precious package and put it in the pocket of his gown. Then drawing on his shoes he added a greatcoat to his equipment, took a candle and went out on to the balcony.

Mr. Magee followed the footprints along the east side of the inn to the corner, then along the more sheltered rear and finally to the west side. On the west was a rather unlovely annex to the main building, which increasing patronage had made necessary. Mr. Magee made his way to the door of the annex. It was locked. But as he turned away he heard voices on the other side.

Mr. Magee had barely enough time to extinguish his candle and slip into the shadows of the corner. The door of the annex opened. A man stepped out into the passageway. He stood there. The light from a candle held by some one in the doorway whom Mr. Magee could not see fell full upon his face—the bespectacled, wise face of Professor Thaddeus Bolton.

"Better luck next time," said the professor.

"Keep an eye on him," said the voice from inside. "If he tries to leave the inn there'll be a big row. We must be in on it—and win."

"I imagine," said Professor Bolton, smiling his academic smile, "that the inmates of Baldpate will make tomorrow a rather interesting day for him."

"It will be an interesting day for every one," answered the voice. "If I should manage to secure the package by any chance," the professor went on, "I shall undoubtedly need your help in getting away with it. Let us arrange a signal. Should a window of my room be open at any time tomorrow you will know the money is in my hands."

"Very good," replied the other. "Good night—and good luck."

The old man moved off down the passageway.

After him crept Mr. Magee. He followed the professor to the east balcony and saw him pause at the open window of No. 7. There the old man looked slyly about, as though in doubt. He peered into the room and one foot was across the sill when Mr. Magee came up and touched him on the arm.

Professor Bolton leaped in evident fright out upon the balcony.

"It's—it's a wonderful night," he said. "I was out for a little walk on the balcony enjoying it. Seeing your open window I was afraid."

"The night you speak so highly of," replied Mr. Magee, "is at your left. You have lost your way. Good night, professor."

He stepped inside and closed the window. Then he pulled down the curtains in both rooms of his suit and spent some time exploring. Finally he paused before the fireplace, and with the aid of a knife unloosed a brick. Under this he placed the package of money, removing the traces of his act as best he could.

"They can't play without me—I've got the ball," he repeated, with a smile. And, safe in this thought, he closed his eyes and slumbered.

The gayest knight must have a morning after. Mr. Magee awakened to his to find suit 7 wrapped again in its favorite polar atmosphere. Filling the door leading to the outer room, he beheld the cause of his awakening—the mayor of Reuton. Mr. Cargan regarded him with the cold steely eye of a Disraeli in action, but when he spoke he opened the jaws of a cocktail mixer.

"Well, young fellow," he remarked, "it seems to me it was time you got up, and faced the responsibilities of the day. First of which, I may mention, is a little talk with me."

He stepped into the room, and through the doorway he vacated Mr. Magee came slinking. The unlovely face of the foe of suspicion was badly bruised, and he looked upon the world with no cheerful eye.

"You used us pretty rough last night in the snow," Cargan went on. "That's why I ain't disposed to go in for kid gloves and diplomacy this morning. It's my experience that when you're dealing with a man who's got the good old Irish name of Magee it's best to hit first and debate afterward."

"I—I used you roughly, Mr. Cargan," said Magee.

"No debate, mind you," protested the mayor. "Lou and me are making this morning call to inquire after a little package that went astray somewhere last night. There's two courses open to you—hand over the package or let us take it. I'll give you a tip—the first is the best. If we have to take it we might get real rough in our actions."

Mr. Max slipped closer to the bed, an ugly look on his face. The mayor glared fixedly into Magee's eyes. The knight who fought for fair ladies in the snow lay on his pillow and considered briefly.

"I get what I go after," remarked Cargan emphatically.

"Yes," spared Magee, "but the real point is keeping what you get after you've gone after it. You didn't make much of an impression on me last night in that line, Mr. Cargan."

"I never cared much for humor," replied the mayor, "especially at this early hour of the morning."

"And I hate a fresh guy," put in Max, "like poison."

"I'm not fresh," Mr. Magee smiled. "I'm stating facts. You say you've come for that package. All right—but you've come to the wrong room. I haven't got it."

"The h— you haven't!" roared the mayor. "Lou, look about a bit."

"Look about all you like," agreed Magee. "You won't find it. Mr. Cargan, I admit that I laid for you last night. I saw you open the safe according to the latest approved methods, and I saw you come forth with a package of money. But I wasn't rough with you. I might have been, to be frank, but somebody beat me to it."

"Who?"

"The man with the seventh key, I suppose—that man Bland heard walking about last night when we were at dinner. Don't tell me you didn't see him in that mixup at the foot of the steps."

"Well, I did think there was another guy," the mayor answered, "but Lou said I was crazy."

"Lou does you an injustice. There was another guy, and if you are anxious to recover your precious package I advise you to wake him up to the responsibilities of the day, not me."

The mayor considered. Mr. Max, who had hastily made the rounds of the three rooms, came back with empty hands.

"Well," said the mayor, "I might as well admit it—I'm up in the air. I don't know just at this minute where to get off. But that state of affairs don't last long with me, young fellow. I'll go to the bottom of this before the day is out, believe me. And if I can't do anything else I'll take you back to Reuton myself and throw you in jail for robbery."

"I wouldn't do that," smiled Magee. "Think of the awful job of explaining to the white necktie crowd how you happened to be dynamiting a safe on Baldpate mountain at midnight."

"Oh, I guess I can get around that," said the mayor. "That money belongs to a friend of mine—Andy Rutter. I happen to go to the inn for a little rest and I grab you dynamiting the safe. I'll keep an eye on you today, Mr. Magee. And let me tell you now that if I catch you or any of the bunch that's with you trying to make a getaway from Baldpate there's going to be a war break out."

"I don't know about the other hermits," laughed Magee, "but personally I expect to be here for several weeks to come. Whew! It's cold in here. Where's the hermit? Why hasn't he been up to fix my fire?"

"Yes, where is he?" repeated Mr. Cargan. "That's what everybody'd like to know. He hasn't showed up. Not a sign of breakfast, and me as hollow as a reformer's victory."

"He's backslid," cried Magee.

"The quitter," sneered Max. "It's only a quitter would live on the mountain in a shack anyhow."

"You're rather hard on poor old Peters," remarked Magee, "but when I think that I have to get up and dress in a refrigerating plant I can't say I blame you. If only the fire were lighted."

He smiled his most ingratiating smile on his companion.

"By the way, Mr. Cargan, you're up and dressed. I've read a lot of magazine articles about you, and they one and all agree that you're a good fellow. You'll find kindling and paper beside the hearth."

"What?" The mayor's roar seemed to shake the windows. "Young man, with a nerve like yours, you could wheedle the price of a battleship from Carnegie. J—I—I— He stood for a moment gazing almost in awe at Magee. Then he burst forth into a whole soul laugh. "I am a good fellow," he said. "I'll show you."

He went into the other room and despite the horrified protests of Lou Max busied himself amid the ashes of the fireplace. When he had a blaze under way Mr. Magee came shivering from the other room and held out his hand.

"Mr. Cargan," he laughed, "you're a prince." He noted with interest that the mayor's broad shoes were mighty near $200,000.

While Mr. Magee drew on his clothes the mayor and Max sat thoughtfully before the fire, the former with his pudgy hands folded over the vast expanse where no breakfast reposed. Mr. Magee explained to them that the holder of the sixth key had arrived.

"A handsome young lady," he remarked. "Her name is Myra Thornhill."

"Old Henry Thornhill's daughter," reflected the mayor. "Well, seems I've sort of lost the habit of being surprised now. I tell you, Lou, we're breaking into the orchid division up here."

While Mr. Magee shaved—in ice cold water, another black mark against the hermit of Baldpate—he turned over in his mind the events of the night before.

He was ready to descend at last and came into the parlor of his suit with greatcoat and hat. In reply to Mr. Cargan's unasked question, he said:

"I'm going up the mountain presently to reason with our striking cook."

"You ain't going to leave this inn, Magee," said the mayor.

"Not even to bring back a cook! Come, Mr. Cargan, be reasonable. You may go with me if you suspect my motives."

They went out into the hall and Mr. Magee passed down the corridor to the farther end, where he rapped on the door of Miss Thornhill's room. She appeared almost immediately, buried beneath furs and wraps.

"You must be nearly frozen," remarked Mr. Magee pityingly. "You and your maid come down to the office. I want you to meet the other guests."

"I'll come," she replied. "Mr. Magee, I've a confession to make. I invented the maid. It seemed so horribly unconventional and shocking—I couldn't admit that I was alone. That was why I wouldn't let you build a fire for me."

"Don't worry," smiled Magee. "You'll find we have all the conveniences up here. I'll present you to a chaperon shortly—a Mrs. Norton, who is here with her daughter. Allow me to introduce Mr. Cargan and Mr. Max."

The girl bowed with a rather startled air, and Mr. Cargan mumbled something that had "pleasure" in it. In the office they found Professor Bolton and Mr. Bland sitting gloomily before the fireplace.

"Got the news, Magee?" asked the haberdasher. "Peters has done a disappearing act."

It was evident to Magee that everybody looked upon Peters as his creature and laid the hermit's sins at his door. He laughed.

"I'm going to head a search party shortly," he said. "Don't I detect the odor of coffee in the distance?"

"Mrs. Norton," remarked Professor Bolton dolefully, "has kindly consented to do what she can."

The girl of the station came through the dining room door. It was evident she had no share in the general gloom that the hermit's absence cast over Baldpate. Her eyes were bright with the glories of morning on a mountain. In their depths there was no room for petty annoyances.

"Good morning," she said to Mr. Magee. "Isn't it bracing? Have you been outside? Oh, I—"

"Miss Norton—Miss Thornhill," explained Magee. "Miss Thornhill has the sixth key, you know. She came last night without any of us knowing."

With lukewarm smiles, the two girls shook hands. Outwardly the glances they exchanged were nonchalant and casual, but somehow Mr. Magee felt that among the matters they established were social position, wit, cunning, guile and taste in dress.

When the rather unsatisfactory substitute for breakfast was consumed, Mr. Magee rose briskly.

"Now," he said, "I'm going to run up to the hermit's shack and reason with him as best I can. I shall paint in touching colors our sad plight. If the man has an atom of decency—"

"A walk on the mountain in the morning," said Miss Thornhill quickly. "Splendid. I—"

"Wonderful," put in Miss Norton. "I, for one, can't resist. Even though I haven't been invited, I'm going along." She smiled sweetly. She had beaten the other girl by the breadth of a hair, and she knew it. New glories shone in her eyes.

"Good for you!" said Magee. The evil hour of explanations was at hand surely. "Run up and get your things."

While Miss Norton was gone Mr. Cargan and Lou Max engaged in earnest converse near a window. After which Mr. Max pulled on his overcoat.

"I ain't been invited either," he said. "but I reckon I'll go along. I always wanted to see what a hermit lived like when he's really buckled down to the hermit business. And then a walk in the morning has always been my first rule for health. You don't mind, do you?"

"Who am I?" asked Magee, "that I should stand between you and health? Come along, by all means."

The three went out through the front door and found under the snow a hint of the path that led to the shack of the post card merchant.

"Will you go ahead?" asked Magee of Max.

"Sorry," grinned Max, "but I guess I'll bring up the rear."

"Suspicion," said Mr. Magee, shaking his head, "has caused a lot of trouble in the world. Remember the cruelty practiced on Pueblo Sam."

"I do," replied Mr. Max, "and it nearly breaks my heart. But there's a little matter I forgot to mention last night. Suspicion is all right in its place."

"Where's that?" asked Mr. Magee.

Mr. Max tapped his narrow chest. "Here," he said. "So the three began the climb, Mr. Magee and the girl ahead, Mr. Max leering at their heels."

Covertly, Mr. Magee glanced at the girl striding along by his side. The red flamed in her cheeks; her long lashes were flecked with the white of the snow; her face was such a one as middle aged men dream of while their fat wives read the evening paper's beauty hints at their side. Far beyond the ordinary woman was she desirable and pleasing. Mr. Magee told himself he had been a fool, for he who had fought so valiantly for her heart's desire at the foot of the steps had faltered when the time came to hand her the prize. Why? What place had caution in the wild scheme of the night before? None surely. And yet he, dolt, idiot, coward, had in the moment of triumph turned cautious. Full confession, he decided, was the only way out.

Some People Waste
Their Money

BUYING SPACE IN A NEWSPAPER TO TELL THE PEOPLE ABOUT WHAT THEY HAVE SOLD and nine times out of ten they lie about that. The buggies we have sold are out where they will speak for themselves and they don't worry us, but we do want to call your attention to the fact that we still have a few of those large roomy buggies on our sample floor and if you are in the market for a storm buggy we want you to see them and it will save you money to look them over. We have lots of respect for the prediction that the little Ground Hog made about this weather. The sample has been good and if you are riding around without the protection of a storm buggy now is the time to get busy and buy one, then you will wonder why you didn't do it long ago. We have some extra good propositions on storm buggies now and if you will give us a chance we will tell you why we can sell you a better storm buggy for less money than our competitors can.

TALKS ON ROAD
PROBLEMS HERE

Prof. R. L. Sackett of Purdue, an Expert, Recommends use of King Drag on Highways.

AT HUNTINGTON INSTITUTE

Says Proper Drainage is One of Essentials in Road Repair.—Material Big Problem.

(By United Press.)

Huntington, Ind., Feb. 28.—Speaking before the Huntington County Farmers' Institute here this afternoon, Prof. R. L. Sackett of Purdue University, an expert on road building, discussed the road problems of Indiana. He said there were two such problems that Indiana must solve. The first problem, he said, was maintaining 25,000 miles of improved roads, most of it of gravel construction. The second is the construction of more permanent roads for those highways where gravel is not satisfactory and not economical.

Prof. Sackett said that gravel had increased in cost and that the old methods—that of placing new gravel on the surface when even ruts have cut the roads—which has continued until the present, is becoming to expensive. Frequent draggings of roads was recommended as an inexpensive method of keeping them in good repair. Sackett said that under the new law a county road superintendent could have the King road drag built. This device, he said, would give the proper cross-section and the proper drainage, which is absolutely necessary to good roads. He suggested that farmers in the spring plan to drag the portion of the road in front of his property—this to be done throughout the year. He said the ordinary steel road scraper disturbs and breaks the surface and is not the tool to use.

The problem of material for the new roads was said to be a more difficult one. Gravel was said to be adapted to light traffic. A city such as Indianapolis, he said, will have traffic entering it such as high speed automobiles, heavy auto trucks, iron-tired truck wagons and iron-tired drays weighing three or four tons. Under such circumstances, he said, a surface of high resistance is necessary, and brick pavements and concrete roadways are found. For boulevards less noisy material is used, such as tar macadam or asphalt macadam. Brick or concrete highways cost $12,000 or $20,000 per mile and could not be afforded in many cases, he declared.

"At the present time," he said, "a stone macadam, with some kind of tar or asphalt binder offers a road intermediate in cost between that of gravel or concrete and brick, and is adapted to a moderate traffic. But as outlined it should have proper maintenance."

Prof. Sackett used a stereopticon, illustrating his remarks with views of good and bad roads in Indiana and in other states.
